

Knox Theological Seminary invites applications for a full-time faculty position in Old Testament (open rank), beginning July 2017. Ph.D. or its equivalent in the field of Old Testament is required.

The successful candidate should be prepared to teach masters-level survey courses in Old Testament and occasional doctoral-level courses in their area of specialty. Specific area of specialization is open. Ordination, prior seminary teaching, and ministry experience are strongly preferred. The anticipated residential teaching load is 6 courses per year.

Knox is a seminary in the tradition of the Reformation that exists to educate men and women to declare and demonstrate the Gospel of Jesus Christ. As such, the successful candidate will wholeheartedly agree to the Seminary's statement of faith and join the faculty in representing a Reformed theological perspective that is firmly rooted in a covenantal reading of scripture, guided by the Westminster Confession of Faith, and is faithful to the Reformed heritage.

Knox Seminary educates students from around the world, providing them with the knowledge and skills needed to be ministry leaders in the Kingdom of God on Earth. Knox students come from diverse Christian traditions but are united both by their affirmation of the tenets of Christianity as found in the Apostle's Creed and by their desire to grow in their knowledge of God for the purpose of serving Christ by proclaiming the Gospel to unbelievers and discipling those who already believe. Knox offers distance and residential courses to provide a cohesive educational experience to train students already actively engaged in a vocational or ministerial roles as well as those interested in full-time studies.

Application Instructions: Applicants should submit a cover letter, CV, three letters of reference, and a one-page statement addressing the candidate's theological perspective as it relates to scripture to:

Dr. Scott Manor, Dean of Faculty
5555 North Federal Highway
Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33308

Consideration of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.